Dear Owners:

I called you late last week and received some helpful information about the most effective way to apply Buggslayer for Box Elder and Asian Lady Beetles.

We live in a home in Prescott, surrounded on three sides by woods with the front of the home facing south. Frankly, the Box Elder and Beetle problem in the fall and spring for the three years prior to this in our new home has been so bad it has affected our feelings regarding the enjoyment of our life here.

To understand that strong statement, it is important for you to know I used to vacuum the bugs off two sides of the house, several times a day, collecting a one inch deep layer of solid bugs in the bottom of my shop vac each time.

I can't believe the performance of Buggslayer after four days of experience with it! Simply amazing! On day two following the application – day one having been the first outbreak for the season – I found a grand total of three bugs on the entire house. On day three, perhaps fifteen appeared in various spots so I hit those spots with spray. This being day four, an ideal day for activity, I found one Box Elder on the entire house.

It is almost too good to be true. Assuming my siding or the garage door doesn't stain or melt away and assuming the bugs stay under this kind of control, you certainly have an amazing product. I don't recall ever having written a testimonial letter before (perhaps one other) and the world needs to know you didn't ask me to write this one. My motivation to write is based on the need to encourage small business people like you when you come up with something which really works and is a real benefit.

By the way, I told you on the phone I bought Buggslayer at Menards in Cottage Grove. I bought two of the eight fluid ounce bottles instead of one of the larger bottles because the smaller ones were priced just under █████ each while the larger bottle was priced at █████. I stopped at the desk on the way out to ask them if they thought anyone would pay █████ more in the big bottle for the same amount of product as two small bottles and their only response was that it could have been they had higher inventory of one over the other. Just thought you would like to know that.

REGARDS
Roger █████

The 8 oz was on sale that week.
